

Crater Bowl

Christopher Kreiling

The Crater Bowl is the theoretical shape a meteorite may have formed when crashing into lava rock. The hand-carved original is cast in bronze or white bronze and patinated on the outside with a high polished exterior. The outside of the heavy bowl has the texture of lava rock giving it a ritualistic feel.

$3,600

Ø 8" x 5.25" H

twentieth