

Welles Central Chandelier 12 by Alessandro Munge

Gabriel Scott

The Welles Central Chandelier 12 brings an impressive sense of scale and structure, making it the perfect statement piece for a large space. Munge's capsule collection comprises a Central Chandelier in three different sizes, alongside an Arm Sconce.

Studio Munge has developed a beautiful narrative infused with dynamic and bold fashion references inspired by Rhythmic Dance. The original Welles was deconstructed and rebuilt using a new support system inspired by the imagery, thus creating a significant visual divergence and a reenergised dialogue between the interconnected elements.

While the fixture's volume is radically different, the modular qualities remain with an ability to extend stems for extra tall ceilings and multiply the globes for larger spaces. This flexibility makes it a truly versatile and playful product inviting designers to create bespoke configurations
